HOW TO CURE CONSUMPTION.

THE PHILOSOPHY OF DR. SCHENCK'S GREAT MEDICINES.—Will people never learn to know that a diseased liver and stomach necessarily disease the entire system? The plainest principles of common sense teach this and yet there are hundreds who ridicule the id a, and continue in the course which almost inevitably brings them prematurely to the grave. Living as the majority of the people do, at complete variance with the laws of nature, it must be apparent to all that, sooner or later, nature will revenge herself. Hence we find that persons who indulge to excess in the use of very rich or indigestible food or intoxicating drinks, invariably pay a heavy penalty in the end. The stomach becomes disordered and refuses to act: the liver fails to perform its functions, dyspepsia and its attendant evils follow, and still the suffering individuals persist in clinging to the thoroughly exploded idea of the past. Dr. SCHENK'S medicines are recommended to all such. They bring sure and certain relief wherever they are used as directed, and all that is necessary to establish their reputation with every ailing man or woman in the lands is a fair and impartial trial of them. Let those who are skeptical on this point, and who have permitted interested persons to prejudice them against these now celebrated remedies for consumption, discard their prejudices, and be governed by the principles of reason and common sense. If the system is disordered depend upon it, in nine cases out of ten the seat of the disorder will be found in the stomach and liver. To cleanse and invigorate the stomach and to stimulate the liver to healthy action, use
SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS.—The daily increasing demand for these pills in the best evidence of their value. Thousands upon thousands of boxes are sold daily. Why? Simply because they act promptly and efficiently. Invalids who may not find it convenient to call on Dr. SCHENCK in person are informed that full and complete directions for use accompany each package of the MANDRAKE PILLS, PULMONIC SYRUP AND SEAWEED TONIC.—These medicines will cure consumption unless the lungs are so far gone that the patient is entirely beyond the reach of medical relief.
It may be asked by those who are not familiar with the virtues of these great remedies, "How do Dr. Schenck's medicines effect their wonderful cures of consumption?"
The answer is a simple one. They begin their work of restoration by bringing the stomach, liver and bowels into an active healthy condition. It is fool that cures this formidable disease. SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS act on the liver and stomach, promoting healthy secretion, and removing the bile and slime which have resulted from the inactive or torpid condition of those organs, and of the system generally. This sluggish state of the body, and the consequent accumulation of the unhealthy substances named prevent the proper digestion of food, and, as a natural consequence creates disease, which results in prostration and finally in death.
SCHENCK'S PULMONIC SYRUP and SEAWEED TONIC, when taken regularly, mingle with the food, and the digestive organs, make good and rich blood, and as a natural consequence, give flesh and strength to the patient. Let the fact say what it may, this is the only true cure for consumption. Experience has proved beyond the shadow of a doubt, and thousands are to-day alive and well who a few years since were regarded as hopeless cases, but who were induced to try Dr. SCHENCK'S remedies, and were restored to permanent health by their use.
One of the first steps the physician should take with a consumptive patient is to invigorate the system. Now how is this to be done? Certainly not by giving medicines that exhaust and enervate—medicines that impair instead of improve the functions of the digestive organs. Does Dr SCHENCK'S medicines cleanse the stomach and bowels of all substances which are calculated to irritate or weaken them. They create an appetite—promote healthful digestion—make good blood, and, as a consequence, they invigorate and strengthen the entire system and more especial by those parts which are diseased. If this cannot be done, then the case must be regarded as a hopeless one.
If the physician finds it impossible to make a patient feel hungry, if the deceased person cannot partake of good nourishing food and properly digest it, it is impossible that he can gain in flesh and strength; and it is equally impossible to bring a patient to this condition so long as the liver is burdened with diseased bile, and the stomach laden with unhealthy slime.
Almost the first request made to the physician by a consumptive patient is that he will prescribe medicines that will allay the cough, night sweats and chills, which are the sure attendants on consumption. But this should not be done, as the cough is only an effort of nature to relieve itself, and the night sweats and chills are caused by the diseased lungs. The remedies and mostly prescribed do more harm than good. They impair the functions of the stomach, impede healthy digestion, and aggravate rather than cure the disease.
There is, after all, nothing like facts which to substantiate a position, and it is upon fac s that Dr. Schenk's relies. Nearly all who have taken his medicines in accordance with his direction have not only been cured of consumption, but, from the fact that these medicines act with wonderful power upon the digestive organs, patients thus cured speedily gain flesh. Cleansing the system of all impurities, they lay the foundation for a solid, substantial structure. Restoring these organs to health, they create an appetite. The food is properly assimilated—the quantity of blood is not only increased, but is made rich and strong and in the face of such a condition of the system all disease must be banished.
Full directions accompany each of the medicines, so that it is not absolutely necessary that patients should see Dr SCHENCK personally, unless they desire to have their lungs examined. For this purpose he is at his office, No 15 North Sixth St., corner of Commerce, Phila., every Saturday, from 9 A. M. until 1 P. M.
Advice is given without charge, but for a thorough examination with the Re-pirometer the charge is $5.

THE LAW AND THE GOSPEL.

BY PEARL RIVERS.

The girl sits reading the Jewish Law,
With the Bible on her knees;
The sun like the Gospel shines around,
But I do not think she sees.

"An eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth,"
In a cold, hard voice she reads;
In the woodland near calls the tender dove,
But I do not think she heeds.

"Eye for an eye, and life for a life;"
Ay, heart for a heart shall it be;
She won my lover and broke my heart;
Her lover shall kneel to me.

I met him at the Hall last night,
And often I saw him glance
At my queenly form, and he prest my hand
When he turned me in the dance.

And he praised the song that I sang for him;
Said I was the fairest there;
And tenderly did he say good-night,
And to-day he will be here.

And sigh for sigh I will pay her back,
And tear for tear she shall weep;
She scattered the seed of hate broadcast,
And the harvest she shall reap.

The breeze came up from the garden near
And fluttered the Bible leaves,
Turning them over with fingers light;
Ah, how her bosom heaves!

And her eyes grew soft, and their stony look
Has melted away into tears,
And she sees the sunlight shining now,
And the dove's low voice she hears.

What reads the girl on the open page?
"Blessings for curses speak;
Resist not ill; to the smiter turn
With patience the other cheek."

And bowing her head on the Holy Book,
"Oh, God, teach me so to live!
Father," she prays in a low sweet voice,
"Forgive me, as I forgive."

An Indian Village.

We learn that there is now in press an edition of Belden: The White Chief, to be called the Million Edition, and to be sold at $2,50 per copy, which should insure for the work a place in every family, especially as the cheap edition will contain all the matter and illustrations of the $3,50 style. Published by A. H. Hubbard, Philada.

We append the following extract in reference to an Indian village, which will be read with interest:

One can have no appreciative idea of an Indian village, unless he has been permitted to come across the prairie through a hot summer's sun, and suddenly discovers one nestled under the broad shade trees, beside a clear running stream, in a green valley. How pleasant the grass then looks; how refreshing the bright waters, and how cosy the tall lodges with their shaded verandahs of thickly interwoven boughs.

All day long we had toiled over the scorching plain, through clouds of grasshoppers that often struck in us the face with sufficient force to make the skin smart for several minutes.—Once we had seen a mirage of a beautiful lake, fringed with trees and surrounded by green pastures, which invited us to pursue its fleeting shadows, but we well knew all about these deceptions by sad experience, and pushed steadily on over the burning sands.

These mirages often deceive the weary traveler of the desert. Suddenly the horseman sees a river or lake, apparently, just ahead of him, and he rides on and on, hoping to come up to it. For hours it lies before his eyes, and then in a moment disappears, leaving him miles and miles out of his way, and in the midst of desert sands Men have ridden all day striving to reach the beautiful river just before them, and then at night turn back to plod their weary way to where they had started from in the morning—These mirages often lead to death both man and horse.

The mirage we had seen was most delightful, representing a clear lake, with trees, meadows and villages nestling on its shores, but it scarcely equalled the reality of the scene when late in the afternoon we ascended a rise in the prairie, and saw below us a wide stream lined with green trees, and on its banks a large Indian settlement.

The ponies pricked up their ears and neighed with pleasure as they smelt the water, and our own delight was unbounded. We halted for a moment to admire the beautiful prospect. Thro' the majestic trees, slanting rays of the sun shivered on the grass. Far away, winding like a huge silver-serpent, ran the river, while near by, in a shady grove, stood the village—the children at play on the green lawns, not made by hands. The white side of the teepees shone in the setting sunlight, and the smoke curled lazily upward from their dingy tops. Bright ribbons and red grass, looking like streamers on a ship, fluttered from the lodge poles, and gaudily dressed squaws and warriors walked about, or sat on the green sod under the trees. There were maidens, as beautiful as Hiawatha, or as graceful as Minnehaha, wandering, hand in hand, along the stream, or listening under the shade of some wide spreading tree to words of love, as soft and tender as ever were poured into woman's ear.

Near the village were hundreds of horses and ponies, with bright feathers flaunting in their manes and tails as they cropped the rich grass of the valley. A group of noisy children were playing at a game much resembling ten-pins; some boys were shooting at a mark with arrows, and up the stream several youths were returning home with rod and line, and fine strings of speckled trout. Scores of men and women were swimming about in the river, now diving, and then dousing each other, amid screams of laughter from the bystanders on the shore.—Here and there a young girl darted about like a fish, her black hair streaming behind her in the water.

While we looked, the little children suddenly ceased from play and ran into the lodges; mounted men surrounded the herd, and the swimmers and promenaders hastened toward the village. We had been perceived by the villagers, and the unexpected arrival of strange horsemen at an Indian encampment always creates great excitement. They may be friends, but they are more often enemies, so the villagers are always prepared for a surprise.

Some men were seen running to and fro with guns and bows, and in a few minutes, some mounted warriors left the encampment and rode toward us, going first to the top of the highest mound to see if they could discover other horsemen in the rear, or to the right or left of us.

No sooner did they ascertain there were but three in the party, than they rode boldly up and asked us our business. I told them who we were, and where we were from, upon which they cordially invited us to the village.

As we approached, men, women and children poured out of the encampment to look at the strangers, and having satisfied their curiosity, the sports and amusements of the evening were renewed.

I asked permission to camp of no one, for I needed none, as this was God's land, and not owned by ravenous and dishonest speculators. So I marched right down to the center of the village, and finding a vacant space pitched my lodge. It was not necessary to purchase a town-lot here, for no one, save Him who owns all, held real estate.

A few Santee women gathered about my squaws and chatted with them, anxious to learn the news from down the river. Seeing that they were interfering with the unpacking of the ponies and the erecting of the lodge, I unceremoniously ordered them to begone, and they went quietly away.—The lodge was soon up; the ponies unpacked and put out to graze. Having seen things put in order for the night, I sauntered out through the village to learn the news.

I was agreeably surprised, when I learned there was a white man in the village, who had been sent out to the Indians as a missionary. All the savages spoke of him as a kind-hearted, good man, who was a great friend of the Great Spirit and the Big Father at Washington.

I made haste to pay my respects to my white brother, and found him indeed a good Christian gentleman. He had a white wife and child, and he and they were living comfortably and pleasantly "with these wild children of the desert. I talked more than an hour with the good man; it was so delightful to see and speak with one of my own blood and color. When I left him, I promised I would return the next day and dine with him, which I did. It may sound strange to hear one talk of "dining out" in an Indian camp, but I can assure my civilized readers the meal was none the less wholesome or abundant on account of the place in which it was served.

When I returned to my lodge, I found it surrounded by a crowd of dirty squaws and children, who were intent upon examining everything we had. I ordered them off, and could not help laughing when I compared the curiosity of these rude Indian women with that I had seen exhibited at church, in the States, by white women. There they go to church, not to hear the Gospel, but to see what their neighbors have to wear, and these Indian women had come to my lodge with the same laudable object. I am not certain that human nature is the same everywhere, but I am quite certain woman nature is the same all the world over.

Discoveries by Accident.

Not a few discoveries in the arts and sciences have been or suggested by accident. The use of the pendulum suggested by the vibrating of a chandelier in a cathedral; the power of steam intimated by the oscillating of the lid of a tea-kettle; the utility of coal gases for light, experimented upon an ordinary tobacco-pipe of white clay; the magnifying property of the lens, stumbled upon by an optician's apprentice while holding spectacle glasses between his thumb and finger are well known instances in proof of the fact.

Galvanism was discovered by accident. Professor Galvani, of Bologna, in Italy, gave his name to the operation, but his wife is considered as actually entitled to the credit of the discovery. She being in bad health, some frogs were ordered for her. As they lay upon the table, skinned, she noticed that their limbs became strongly convulsed when near an electrical conductor. She called her husband's attention to the fact; he instituted a series of experiments, and in 1789 the galvanic battery was invented.

Eleven years later, with that discovery for his basis, Professor Alessandro Volta, also an Italian, announced his discovery of the "voltaic pile."

The discovery of glass making was effected by seeing the sand verified upon which a fire had been kindled.

Blancount says that the making of plate glass was suggested by the fact that a workman happening to break a crucible filled with melted glass—the fluid ran under one of the large flagstones with which the floor was paved On raising the stone to recover the glass, it was found in the form of a plate, such as could not be produced by the ordinary process of blowing.

Glass pearls, though among the most beautiful, inexpensive, and common ornaments worn by the ladies, are produced by a very singular process. In 1856, a Venetian, named Jaquin, discovered that the scales of fish, called bleak-fish, possessed the property of communicating a pearly hue to the water. He found, by experimenting, that beads dipped into the water assumed, when dried, the appearance of pearls. It proved, however that the pearly coat, when placed outside, was easily rubbed off; and the next improvement was to make the beads hollow. The making of these beads is carried on to this day in Venice. The beads are all blown separately. By means of a small tube, the insides are delicately coated with the pearly liquid, and a waxed coating is placed over that. It requires the scales of four thousand fish to produce half a pint of the liquid, to which a small quantity of sal-ammonia and isinglass afterwards added.

Lundy Foot, the celebrated snuff manufacturer, originally kept a small tobacconist shop at Limerick. One night his house, which was uninsured, was burned to the ground. As he contemplated the smoking ruins, on the following morning, in a state bordering on despair, some of the poor neighbors, groping among the embers for what they could find, stumbled upon several canisters of unconsumed, but half baked snuff, which they tried and found it so pleasant to their noses that they loaded their waistcoat pockets with it. Lundy Foot, aroused from his stupor, imitated their example, and took a pinch of his own property, when he was struck by the superior pungency and flavor it had acquired from the great heat to which it had been exposed. Acting upon the hint, he took another house in a place called Black Yard, erected ovens, and set about the manufacture of that high-dried commodity which soon became widely known as Black Yard Snuff.—Eventually he took a larger house in Dublin, and making his customers pay liberally through the nose, amassed a great fortune by having been ruined.—Oliver Optic's Magazine.

TOO MUCH LIGHT.—When Daniel Webster and his brother Ezekiel were together they had frequent literary disputes; and on one occasion, after they had retired to bed, they entered into a squabble about a certain passage of one of their school books, and having risen to examine the authorities in their possession, they set the bedclothes on fire and nearly burnt their father's dwelling. On being questioned the next morning respecting the accident, Daniel remarked that 'they were in pursuit of light, but got more than they wanted.'

THANKSGIVING.

By the President of the United States. A Proclamation.

Whereas, It behooves a people sensible of their dependence on the Almighty, publicly and collectively to acknowledge their gratitude for his favors and mercies, and humbly beseech for their continuance; and

Whereas, The people of the United States, during the year now about to end, have special cause to be thankful for the general prosperity, abundant harvests, exemption from pestilence, foreign war and civic strife; now, therefore, be it known, that I, Ulysses S. Grant, President of the United States, concurring in any similar recommendation from chief magistrates of States, do hereby recommend to all citizens to meet in their respective places of worship on Thursday, the 24th day November next, there to give thanks for the bounty of God during the year about to close, and to supplicate for its continuance hereafter.

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.
Done at the city of Washington, this 21st day of October, in the year of our Lord, one thousand eight hundred and seventy, and of the independence of the United States the ninety-fifth.

U. S. GRANT.

By the President,
HAMILTON FISH, Secretary of State.

Proclamation from the Governor.

In continuance of an honored State and National custom, and in devout acknowledgment of human dependence upon Almighty favor, I do hereby appoint Thursday, the twenty-fourth day of November next, as a day of general Thanksgiving and praise, being the same day, and for the same ends and uses, set forth by his excellency, the President of the United States, in his proclamation of the 21st instant.

Pennsylvania, unsurpassed in blessings, should not be surpassed by any in acknowledging her gratitude to God. Let us, then, as citizens of the Commonwealth, abstain, as far as possible, from our usual avocations on that day, and assemble in our respective places of worship, and let us there and in the festivities of our assembled families at our cherished homes, rejoice in the goodness of God, and render thanks to Him for His lovingkindness and His abundant mercy toward us. Let our thanksgiving and our praise find expression in dedicating the day to deeds of benevolence and charity, and in ministering to and alleviating the wants of the poor, the needy and the suffering, so that all may "rejoice and be exceeding glad." "To do good and distribute, forget not; for with such sacrifices God is well pleased."

Let us invoke divine favor upon our beloved State and Nation, and pray that all who are called to administer their governments may be actuated by the "spirit of wisdom and understanding, the spirit of counsel and might, the spirit of knowledge and the fear of the Lord."

Given under my hand and the great seal of the State, at Harrisburg, this twenty-eighth day of October, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and seventy, and of the Commonwealth the ninety-fifth.

JOHN W. GEARY.

By the Governor:
F. JORDAN,
Sec'y. of the Commonwealth.

THE HISTORY OF A DEFUNCT HORSE.—As soon as the horse is dead his blood is sought by the manufacturers of albumen, and by sugar refiners, and by the burners of lamp black. Not a drop of it is allowed to go to waste.—The mane and tail are wanted for hair cloth, sieves, bow strings and brushes. The skin is converted into leather, for cart harness, for boots and shoes, and strong collars. The hoofs are used for combs, horn work, glue, and, in old times, were the chief source of the spirits of hartshorn, now obtained from the gas house. The flesh is boiled down in the rendering vat, and much oil and fat is obtained from it. Some of the choice bits may find their way into cheap restaurants, and play the part of beefsteak, or help to enrich the hasty plates of soup to those establishments. The flesh left after all has been extracted from it, that is of any service is sometimes burned, to be used as a manure, or is worked up into nitrogenous compounds, such as the cyanides, to be used by the photographer for taking out pictures.

The stomach and intestines make valuable strings and cords for musical instruments, and out of the bones so many useful articles are manufactured that it is almost impossible to make out a complete list of them. Among them are buttons, toys, tweezers, cups, knife handles, rulers, dominoes, balls, and the residue from all these things is burnt into bone black to be used by the sugar refiner, who thus puts in a second claim upon the dead horse; and some part of the bone black is burned white, to be used by the assayer in testing for gold; and, when the refiner and assayer have finished with it, it is converted into super-phosphate, to serve as a valuable manure on our land. The teeth are used as substitutes for ivory; and the iron shoes, if not nailed up over the door to insure good fortune to the household, are worked up into excellent wrought metal. Some portion of the bone black is converted into phosphorus, for the manufacture of matches, and lately a valuable bread preparation is made of the phosphate, and medicines are prepared for the cure of consumptives.

HUNTINGDON, PA.

Tuesday morning, Nov. 8, 1870.

WM. LEWIS, HUGH LINDSAY, } EDITORS.

The "Globe" has the largest number of readers of any other paper published in the county. Advertisers should remember this.

TO OUR SUBSCRIBERS.

We are now sending out bills to our subscribers, on which is written the time and amount of their subscriptions. We hope none will take offence at receiving these gentle reminders of the amount of their indebtedness, but will rather endeavor to call on us or send the amount due before the year 1870 closes, and bring or send in as many new subscriptions as they can. We will return the favor with all who get us new subscribers, according to the number they send us.

Some of our subscribers are a number of years in arrears, and we are grateful that some of these to whom we sent bills last week have responded promptly and are now square again. The largest number are about a year in arrears. This time may seem short to them, and for fear they may let another year slip round and have a larger amount to pay, we have sent them a bill. We hope they will call on us or send the money as soon as possible.

Our town subscribers will call at our office, and for their satisfaction and for ours, learn how they stand on our books, and pay up.

We will receive produce of all kinds and cash that is genuine in payment of subscriptions. The farming community have therefore a splendid opportunity to avail themselves of this offer, and either subscribe or pay up for THE GLOBE.

Yours truly,

LEWIS & LINDSAY,

Publishers.

☞ It is rumored that the nine million swindle bill is to come up again before our next Legislature. We advise our Representatives to be on their guard, as old Money-bags will surely be around.

☞ To-day elections are being held in nineteen States for Congress and State officers. These States are Alabama, Arkansas, Delaware, Florida, Illinois, Kansas, Kentucky, Massachusetts, Michigan, Maryland, Minnesota, Missouri, Nevada, New Jersey, New York, Rhode Island, Tennessee, Virginia and Wisconsin.

☞ Some time ago the colored cadet Smith at West Point struck another white cadet named Wilson with a cocoa-nut dipper. The fracas brought forth a court-martial of Smith, and now it is said he will be acquitted on account of justice. Wilson had persecuted him because of his color, and he had thrashed him for it.

☞ Statesmen are wanted to lead the Republican party to prevent it from being crushed out in 1872. Mere political gamblers seem to have control of the President's ear and of the patronage of the administration, and the party is losing the confidence of the people and growing weaker in every State in the Union. There must be a change soon, to prevent the Democratic party from electing the next President and the Governors in many of the States, including Pennsylvania.

☞ King William is now to be made Emperor of Prussia—and this is one of the results of the war. Let a man slay his fellow-men, and meet with success in every bloody undertaking and his people surfeit him with honors and crown him with their highest gifts.—But how is it with poor Napoleon! Whipped and a prisoner as he is, his own people scorn him, the crown that he wore for a quarter of a century is taken from him, and he is doomed to sink into the oblivion of private life, and die, perhaps unhonored and unmourned.

☞ Republican and Democratic papers are alike enthusiastic in their demands for a State Convention for Constitutional Reform. The amendments specially desired seem to be:—The people to elect the State Treasurer, Attorney General, U. S. Senators, and Superintendent of Public Schools; abolishing special legislation by the Legislature; punishing legislators who accept bribes; establishing minority representation; and preventing the transfer of the State funds for the benefit of individuals or corporations, and increasing the number of representatives.

All of these amendments are good, and we think the sooner they are incorporated in our State Constitution the better it will be for our Commonwealth. The proposed amendments nearly all are aimed at the Legislative power, wherein for many years corruption has been sapping the foundation of good and honest administration of government, through certain men who are elected for the purpose of carrying out the designs of wicked individuals and greedy corporations.

Illegal Voting.

Everywhere we hear of political frauds on election day. The ballot boxes are stuffed, "repeaters" go from poll to poll, and every means of the foulest kind is resorted to to elect the rabble's favorite. It is only the roughs who perpetrate such rascality, and it is time that the votes of honest men should be worth something. A clan of "repeaters" can elect their man in some cities, without fear or molestation, no matter about the number of votes cast by the undesigning. Of course good men will stay away from the polls, as their votes will count for nothing, and this being the case, how long will it be until the off-scourings of the land will be its rulers? The Republic of America is in danger from the political cut-throats and tyrants, and it behooves our legislators to adopt forcible measures to abolish the crime.

It cannot be said, for the welfare of our country that "All is fair in Politics." Let that be the motto and allow the evil machinations of man to devise more and fouler means than are now practiced, and every office will be filled with those who are in company with villains, and our country will be the scene of corruption and anarchy.

We are too apt to forget the importance of our elections. They result in the weal or woe of the State or Nation, and regarded as such good men must be chosen as its rulers.—What would our Congress be if the majority were John Morrisey's? and what would our Legislature be if the majority were the kind that Billy McMullin's clan sends from Philadelphia? The upas of corruption that has already infested our State Chambers, was planted by the designing class of politicians of whom we have been writing, and to-day honest men can accomplish but little in staying the tide of corruption that threatens to turn our Legislature into a "den of thieves."

We want good men to represent us, says the people, but unless the sources of corruption are closed at the fountain-head (at the city elections,) we fear the good that good men will do will be but little; and to abolish it there the strong arm of the law should be employed.

☞ The following letters have been handed us for publication:

LEWISTOWN, Nov. 5, 1870.

J. S. BLAIR, ESQ., Dear Sir: In reply to your inquiry, I think it but justice to you to say, that amidst all the treachery to the Senatorial ticket during the late political campaign by professed Republicans, I feel satisfied that you as Chairman of your County Committee, acted towards me in good faith; and I have no idea that you were cognizant of the printing of the fraudulent tickets at the Republican office and their circulation.

Yours truly,

D. W. WOODS

MARKLESBURG, Nov. 7, 1870.

J. S. BLAIR, Esq., Dear Sir: My attention has been called to an article in the Globe of last week, implicating you as Chairman of the County Committee in the distribution of tickets in which my name was printed Weaver instead of Beaver.

In justice to you I feel bound to say that I exonerate you from all blame in that transaction. What others may have done, I am satisfied you acted in good faith towards me.

Yours truly,

ANTHONY J. BEAVER.

[We have but one remark to add—It was Mr Blair's business to know that the tickets he circulated were right.

☞ The Legitimists, headed by Count de Chamboard, are intriguing for the French throne. The Count has issued an address to the French people, urging that in view of the frequent changes in government and revolutions that have resulted in France for the last century, a legitimate monarchy would be the best for France.—The Orleanists, headed by the Duke of Orleans and Count of Paris, are endeavoring to place the Orleans branch of the Bourbon family in the ascendant. They are said to have an army of 150,000 men to back their claims.—Gambetta, who heads the Provisional Government, has issued a proclamation, in which he declares that "in this epoch of rascally capitulations there exists one thing which neither can nor will capitulate, and that is the French Republic."

☞ The point has been legally determined by Judge Tappan, of the Kings county, New York, Supreme Court, that a marriage is perfectly legal if the parties only promise to live together as husband and wife. Such being the case, it will be well for some of the young men and ladies who make such promises to bear these facts in mind, as the failure to remember them may lead to unpleasant after-complications.

☞ An eccentric individual in Hartford, Conn., died about a year since, bequeathing to his widow and two daughters $5,000 each, "provided they die without children," to his son $4,000 for business purposes, and to his son-in-law $2,500, "provided his wife dies before him without children." He also stipulated that "my property is to descend to my grand-children that may be born twenty-one years after my decease." The estate is worth $150,000. One redeeming feature about the document is the fact that he wrote on the outside of the envelope in which the will was found, "Alter and revise," and this is now being done before the Supreme Court of Errors at the instance of the heirs.

A Fresh Muddle.

What a sorry life our Presidents have? All our readers know the odium in which President Johnson was held, but we, with others, are surprised at the announcement that trouble is brewing, and an opposition movement is organizing against President Grant. A number of prominent Senators have taken exception to the General—some on personal and others on political grounds—and it is expected that a serious difference will ensue at the next session. The President is charged with attempting to please both the people and the politicians—and here, in our opinion, is the rub in American politics. The generality of politicians care nothing about the people's interests, but are ever intent upon enhancing their own, or their favorites'. Caring nothing for the people, their object is to ensnare the one whom the people have chosen to represent them, and woe be to him who thwarts them in their demands. So it appears it is with President Grant.—He was decidedly the people's candidate, and was emphatically chosen as their representative; but ever since he was inaugurated the politicians have sought to control him, and it is feared they have to some extent succeeded, as is instanced in the case of Secretary Cox, who, from all accounts, was an earnest laborer for reform in the civil service, and sought to take the power and rule of the government out of the hands of the politicians. We are sorry that the President has listened to the clamors of the political circle, and made this blunder. The voice of the press is against it, and when the people more fully understand the situation they will see the error that has been committed. The cry of the people everywhere is for reform, and the President can only carry out their wishes by heeding the politicians less. His administration, thus far, has been characterized by honesty and economy, but neither of these qualities of good government can be found nor expected in those whom political tricksters aim to get in position. When politicians try to cry down a good reform man like Cox they will find that the people will only sustain him the more.

SHOCKING ACCIDENT—SCHOOL CHILDREN FALL INTO A VAULT.—The Owego Press records a shocking accident that occurred at a public school in that city one day last week. The children were enjoying the morning recess, when one of the female teachers was informed by a little girl that the privy floor had fallen in and a lot of girls were in there. She ran down to the yard in the rear, when, at a glance, her eye met a scene that almost paralyzed her for a moment. A dozen or more little girls had fallen through the floor and were struggling in the vault, with cries and screams of terror. The teacher ran to two young men, who were passing, and implored them to render assistance. They went to the scene of the accident, where several of the neighboring women had already gathered, and took out seven of the children, several having been helped out by the other bystanders.

Josephine Henry, aged ten years, was the last one taken out, and was found to be dead. She was pulled out by her mother, who did not recognize her child till she noticed the string of beads on her neck. The woman's grief was fearful to witness. Nellie Rowan, a girl of ten years old, was insensible when taken out, and for some time was thought to be dead, but was finally brought to consciousness, and will recover. Two or three others were partly insensible. As soon as all were got out the school was called to order, and roll called, when all the children were accounted for except one or two, who have since been found to be safe. The school was dismissed for the day.

The vault was about twelve feet deep, and was full of water to within a foot and a half of the floor of the building. About six feet of the flooring on the girls' side gave way. The scantling which formed the support of the floor was rotten, and must have been long in an extremely unsafe condition. The accident suggests a rigid and frequent examination of the public school buildings and outhouses.

☞ Since the creation of the world, about fourteen thousand millions of human beings have fallen in the battles which man has waged against his fellow-creature, man. If this amazing number were to hold each other by the hand at arm's length, they would extend over four millions five hundred and eighty-four thousand three hundred and thirty-three miles of ground, and would encircle the earth on which we dwell six hundred and eight times. If we allow the weight of a man to be on an average one hundred weight, (this is below the mark) we shall come to the conclusion that six millions two hundred and fifty thousand tons of human flesh have been mangled, disfigured, gashed, and trampled under foot. The calculation will appear more strikingly when we state that if only the forefingers of every one of those fourteen millions of human beings were to be held in a straight line, they would reach more than six hundred thousand miles beyond the moon; and if a person were to undertake to count the number, allowing nineteen hours a day, and seven days in a week, at the rate of six thousand per hour, it would occupy that person three hundred and thirty-six years.—And—awful is the consideration—three hundred and fifty thousand pipes of human blood have been spilt in battle! Who would not exclaim with Bishop Hall: "Give us the man who can devise how to save troops of men from killing; his name shall find room in my calendar. There is more true honor in a civic garland for the preserving of one subject, than in a laurel for the victory over many enemies."

Summary of War News.

Metz was occupied by the Germans Monday a week, the French having previously laid down their arms. The whole number of prisoners taken was 178,000, including three marshals and 6,000 officers One hundred guns were fired in Berlin in honor of the event. Metz is one of the strongest fortresses in Europe, and the Germans say they mean to keep and hold it.—The prisoners will go to Germany in small detachments. The conditions of capitulation include the fortress, towns, all munitions, provisons, and other property of the State. The surrounding forts, and all arms, flags, etc., therein will be undisturbed. French officers pledged themselves in writing not to engage in war, and they were allowed to retain their side arms and luggage in token of the courage shown in defence of the city.

The capitulation of Metz created the greatest excitement in Paris and throughout France. The Provisional Government, and the Republicans, denounce Bazaine as a traitor. Bazaine defends his action by asserting that his army and the people of Metz were on the verge of starvation. Bazaine and his leading officers have been sent to Germany, and are in conference with the ex-Emperor at Williamshoe. The ex-Empress Eugenie has also left England on a visit to her husband.—The Prince Imperial remains in England.

News has been received from Paris to Oct. 29. The people were strong in their determination to defend the city to the last extremity. Great numbers of new enrollments had been made in order to strengthen the defence of the fortifications. It was estimated that the rations of fresh and salt meats would subsist the city until the end of January. The journals assert that bread will be dealt out in rations until the 1st of January, the supply on hand being ample.

All the French forts are armed with six-and-a-quarter, seven and a half, nine, ten-and-a-half-inch guns, ranging from 7,925 to 9,000 yards, and throwing from seventy-five to two hundred pound shells.

The besiegers possess 180 heavy guns, mounted on field carriages.—These carriages allow an elevation of the guns to an angle of forty-five degrees. The heaviest throw seventy-five pound shells. They have two mortars, throwing two hundred pound shells

A GREAT MEDICAL DISCOVERY

Dr. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA

VINEGAR BITTERS

Hundreds of Thousands

Bear testimony to their Wonderful Curative Effects.

WHAT ARE THEY?

THEY ARE NOT A VILE

FANCY DRINK,

Made of Poor Rum, Whiskey, Proof Spirits and Refuse Liquors doctored, spiced and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics," "Appetizers," "Restorers," &c., that lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true Medicine, made from the Native Roots and Herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants. They are the GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER and A LIFE GIVING PRINCIPLE, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the System, carrying off all poisonous matter and restoring the blood to a healthy condition. No person can take these Bitters according to direction and remain long unwell.

$1000 will be given for an incurable case, provided the bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Dyspepsia, or Indigestion, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys, and Bladder, these Bitters have been most successful. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

DYSPEPSIA OR INDIGESTION, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offsprings of Dyspepsia.

They invigorate the Stomach and stimulate the torpid Liver and bowels, which render them of unequalled efficacy in cleansing the blood of all impurities, and imparting new life and vigor to the whole system.

FOR SKIN DISEASES, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-Worms, Scald-Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters. One bottle in such cases will convince the most incredulous of their curative effect.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure and the health of the system will follow.

PIN, TAPE and other WORMS, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. For full directions, read carefully the circular around each bottle, printed in four languages—English, German, French and Spanish.

They are a Gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and all the Visceral Organs.

FOR FEMALE COMPLAINTS, whether in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood or at the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters have no equal.

☞ Send for a circular.

West Huntingdon.

Again we are called upon to notice the thriving and enterprising part of our borough known as West Huntingdon. Yesterday we took an optical survey of the town, and we were very agreeably surprised at the large number of dwellings and places of business that have been erected since we last alluded to the town, in the Globe.—Two years ago but few houses could be seen and no manufactories. Now, there are so many houses that it is difficult to count them, and the Huntingdon Manufacturing Company is filling large orders of first-class building material and furniture, and gives steady employment to a large number of workmen. Directly opposite this establishment is looming up the third story of a large Shoe Factory, which is to be in operation this winter, and will give work to about twenty five employees. A large Coach Manufactory is to go up next spring, and we are informed that other factories are under consideration.

We are glad to note these improvements in that part of the town, but we must in justice give due credit to the original owners of the land, Wharton, Miller and Anderson, who have had it surveyed and partitioned in lots and offer them at reasonable prices. They saw that Huntingdon, of all other towns along the railroad, had the best facilities for a business place, and availing themselves of the opportunity they made the lots, and at once they were purchased, and now nearly all are sold. They have erected houses on some of the lots, and will build for those who are not able to build themselves—thus affording homes to poor artisans, which they can pay for as they are able.

☞ No one likes to be found fault with but almost every one likes to find fault with others; but one thing is certain, and that is no one can find fault with the splendid mammoth cake that I received from the hands of Mr. Luke Reilly, the well known baker who, by the way, is perfect in the art he professes. Many thanks, Mr. Reilly! Again, I say, many thanks for such a gift!

My cake is like a mount of snow,
With pretty vines and flowers, you know,
And snowy birds with upraised wings,

EXCELSIOR.

The most ludicrous incident related in connection with the earthquake occurred at Beverly, Mass., where a pupil in one of the schools was in the act of sitting down when the shock occurred. The teacher attributed the shaking of the building to the abrupt manner in which the lad took his seat, and punished him for the offence by requiring him to stand three-quarters of an hour.

☞ The New York Globe, a very newsy paper, by the way, deserves credit for the following hit on the weatherwise:

Everybody portends an unusually cold Winter, this year. The earth, the air, and the woods are full of ominous signs; even the birds, rats, and small animals, which follow blind instinct, feel the approach of blasts from the North earlier and colder than heretofore, and they are all making preparations to resist the advent of Jack Frost. We learn that the Ohio squirrels have made a stampede en masse for the South, and are swimming the Ohio river in droves. Some of them go over on chips. The good people of Kentucky are out, killing them in large numbers. It is a queer fact that these wise little squirrels all turn their backs to the North, as they cross the Ohio. As usual, the muskrat is building his nest higher and thicker than heretofore. Many flocks of wild geese have gone South prematurely soon, making an unusual chattering on the way. Some half-starved, disconsolate crows have been found in New England. A large amount of false hair has just arrived in Boston, for the purpose of keeping the heads of Boston belles warm. It was imported from Europe. A great activity in the stove trade is reported from Troy; there are rumors of a break up in the Cabinet; icebergs are floating around loose in the North Sea; the mouth of the Elbe is already closed, and several other German rivers which towards the North are in the same condition; the thermometer business is thriving; there is a possibility of a strike among the coal miners of Pennsylvania before Christmas; the price of overcoats has gone up, the weather wise people are making customary predictions about the severe Winter just at hand. Things certainly point that way, and we advise the thin blooded to lay in an extra stock of flannels.

MAXIMS FOR MERCHANTS.—A short advertisement four times is better than a very long one once. "Brag is a good dog, but Holdfast is a better."

Don't fear to have a small advertisement by the side of a large competing one. The big one can't eat it up.

A prominent advertisement once or twice will be effective, if followed up by a steady card giving your business and address.

If business admits of it, several small advertisements, with your name repeated every time, will avail more than the same collected, with your name in only once.

Don't tear down your sign in dull time. People read newspapers all times of the year.

There is no instance on record of a well sustained system of judicious advertising failing of success.

When people see a man advertise they know he is a business man, and his advertising proclaims that he is not above business, but anxious to do it.

THE MORRISON'S COVE RAILROAD.—The contractor is getting along finely on this road. There are some three or four miles graded and ready for the ties, and the balance of the road is in an advanced state, and it is supposed that by some time in December it will be completed to the Gap. We understand that it is the intention to give out the contract for the building of the road on to Martinsburg soon, and we may expect to see it completed to that point some time during next summer, when it will be carried on to connect with the road to Bedford.—This will make a new era in our country.—Hollidaysburg Register.

ROSADALIS

THE Great American Health Restorer, purifies the blood and cures Scrofula, Syphilis, Skin Diseases, Rheumatism, Diseases of Women and all Chronic Affections of the Blood, Liver and Kidneys. Recommended by the Medical Faculty and thousands of our best citizens.

Read the testimony of Physicians and patients who have used Rosadalis and for our Rosadalis Guide to Health or Almanac for this year, which we publish for gratuitous distribution; it will give you much valuable information.

Dr. R. W. Carr, of Baltimore says:

I take pleasure in recommending your Rosadalis as a very powerful alterative. I have seen it used in two cases with happy results—one in case of secondary syphilis, in which the patient pronounced himself cured after having taken five bottles of your medicine. The other is a case of scrofula of long standing, which is rapidly improving under its use, and the indications are that the patient will soon recover. I have carefully examined the formula by which your Rosadalis is made, and find it an excellent compound of all alterative ingredients.

Dr. Sparks, of Nicholasville, Ky., says he has used Rosadalis in cases of scrotula and secondary Syphilis with satisfactory results—as a cleanser of the blood I know no better remedy.

Samuel G. McFadden, Murfreesboro' Tennessee, says:

I have used seven bottles of Rosadalis, and am entirely cured of Rheumatism; send me four bottles, as I wish it for my brother, who has scrofulous sore eyes.

Benjamin Bechtol, of Lima, Ohio, writes, I have suffered for twenty years with an inveterate eruption over my body; a short time since I purchased a bottle of Rosadalis and it effected a perfect cure.

Rosadalis is sold by John Read and S. S. Smith, Huntingdon, Pa., and Druggists generally.

WHAT I KNOW OF FARMING.

BY HORACE GREELEY.

XXXVI.

STONE ON A FARM.

This earth, geologists say, was once an immense expanse of heated vapor, which gradually cooling at its surface, as it whirled and sped through space, contracted and formed a crust, which we know as Rock or Stone. This crust has since been broken through and tilted up into ranges of mountains and hills, by the action of internal fires, by the trans-mutation of solid bodies into more expansive gases; and the fragments torn away from the sharper edges of the upheaved masses of granite, quartz, or sandstone, having been frozen into icebergs floating, or soon to be so, have been carried all over the surface of our planet, and dropped upon the greater part, as those icebergs were ultimately resolved, by a milder temperature, into flowing water. When the seas were afterward reduced nearly or quite to the present limits, and the icebergs restricted to the frigid zones and their vicinity, streams had to make their way down the sides of the mountains and hills to the subjacent valleys and plains, sweeping along not merely sand and gravel but bowlders also, of every size and form, and sometimes great rocks, as well, by the force of their currents.—And as a very large, if not the larger, portion of our earth's surface bears testimony to the existence and powerful action through ages, of larger and smaller water-courses, a wide and general diffusion of stones, not in places, but more or less triturated, smoothed and rounded, by the action of water, was among the inevitable results.

These are sometimes a facility, but oftener an impediment, to efficiency in agriculture. When heated by fervid sunshine throughout the day, they retain a portion of that heat through a part of the succeeding night, thereby raising the temperature of the soil, and increasing the deposit of dew on the plants there growing. When generally broken so finely so to offer no impediment to cultivation, they not merely absorb heat by day, to be given off by night, but, by rendering the soil open and porous, secure a much more extensive diffusion of air, through it than would otherwise be possible.—Thus do slaty soils achieve and maintain a warmth unique in their respective latitudes, so as to ripen grapes further North, and at higher elevations, than would otherwise be possible.

The great Prairies of the West, with a considerable portion of the valleys and plains of the Atlantic slope, expose no rock at their surfaces, and little beneath them, until the soil has been traversed, and the vicinity of the underlying rock in place fairly attained. To farmers inured to the perpetual stone-picking of New England, and other hilly regions, this is a most welcome change; but when the pioneer comes to look about him for stone to wall his cellar and his well, to underpin his barn, and form the foundations of his dwelling, he realizes that the bowlders he had exulted in leaving behind him were not wholly and absolutely a nuisance; glad as he was to be rid of them forever, he would like now to call some of them back again.

Yet, the Eastern farmer of to-day has fewer uses for stone than his grandfather had. He does not want his farm cut up into two or three acre patches, by broad based, unsightly walls, which frost is apt to heave year into greater deformity and less efficiency; nor does he care longer to use them in draining, since he must excavate and replace thrice as much earth in making a stone as in making a tile drain; while the former affords shelter and impunity to rats, mice, and other mischievous, predatory animals, whose burrowing therein tends constantly to stimulate its natural tendency to become choked with sand earth. Of the stone drains, constructed through parts of my farm by foremen whose wills proved stronger than my own, but two remain in partial operation, and I shall rejoice when these shall have filled themselves up and been counted out evermore. Happily they were sunk so low that the subsoil plow will never disturb them.

Still, my confidence that nothing was made in vain is scarcely shaken by the prevalence and abundance of stone on our eastern farms. We may not have present use for them all; but our grand-sons will be wiser than we, and have uses for them which we hardly suspect. I reinsist that land which is very stony was mainly created with an eye to timber growing, and that millions of acres of such ought forthwith to be planted with Hickory, White Oak, Locust, Chestnut, White Pine, and other valuable forest-trees. Every acre of thoroughly dry land, lying near a railroad, in the Eastern or Middle States, may be made to pay a good interest on from $50 up to $100, provided there be soil enough above its rocks to afford a decent foothold for trees; and how little will answer this purpose none can imagine who have not seen the experiment tried. Sow thickly that you may begin to cut out poles six to ten feet long within three or four years, and keep cutting out (but never cutting off) thenceforward, until time shall be no more, and your rocky crests, steep hillsides and ravines, will take rank with the most productive portions of your farm.

In the edges of these woods, you may deposit the surplus stones of the adjacent cultivated fields, in full assurance that moth and rust will not corrupt nor thieves break through and steal, but that you and your sons and grandsons will find them there whenever they shall be needed, as well as those you found there when you came into possession of the farm.

I am further confident that we shall build more and more with rough unshapen stone, as we grow older and wiser. In our harsh, capricious climate, walls of stone-concrete afford the cheapest and best protection alike against heat and frost, for our animals certainly, and, I think, also for ourselves. Let the farmer begin his barn by making of stone, laid in thin mortar, a substantial basement story, let into a hillside, for his manure and his root cellar; let him build upon this a second story of like materials for the stalls of his cattle; and now he may add a third story and roof of wood for his hay and grain, if he sees fit. His son or grandson will probably, take this off, and replace it with concrete walls and a slate roof; or this may be postponed till the original wooden structure has rotted off; but I feel sure that, ultimately, the dwellings as well as the barns of thrifty farmers, in stony districts will mainly be built of rough stones, thrown into a box and firmly cemented by a thin mortar composed of much sand and little lime, and that thus at least ten thousand tuns of stone to each farm will be disposed of. It may be somewhat later still before our barnyards, fowl inclosures, gardens, pig-pens, &c. will be shut in by cemented walls; but the other sort affords such ample and perpetual lurking places for rats, minks, weasels, and all manner of destructive vermin, that they are certain to go out of fashion before the close of the next century.

As to blasting out stone, too large or too firmly fixed to be otherwise hauled, I would solve the problem by asking, "Do you mean to keep this lot in cultivation? If you do, clear it of stone from the surface upward, and for at least two feet downward, though they may be as large as haycocks, and as fixed as the everlasting hills. Clear your field of every stone bigger than a goose-egg, that the plow or mower may strike in doing its work, or give it to timber, plant it thoroughly and leave its stones unmolested until your descendants shall have a paying use for them.

A friend deeply engaged in lumbering gives me a hint which I think some owners of stony farms will useful. He is obliged to run his logs down shallow, stony creeks, from the bottom of which large rocks often protrude, arresting the downward progress of his lumber. When the beds of these creeks are nearly dry in Summer, he goes in, with two or three stout, strong assistants, armed with crowbars and levers, and rolls the stones to this side and that, so as to leave a clear passage for his logs. Occasionally he is confronted by a fellow, which defies his utmost force; when, instead of drilling and blasting, he gathers dead tree-tops, and other dry wood of no value, from the banks, and builds a hot fire on the top of each giant bowlder.—When the fire has burned out, and the rock has cooled, he finds it softened, and, as it were rotten, on the top, often split, and every way so demoralized that he can deal with it as though it were chalk or cheese. He estimates his saving by this process, as compared with drilling and blasting, as much more than fifty per cent. I trust farmers with whom wood is abundant, and big stones super-abundant, will give this simple experiment a trial.

ADDRESS

NERVOUS AND DEBILITATED.

WHOSE SUFFERINGS HAVE BEEN PROTRACTED

FROM HIDDEN CAUSES, AND WHOSE

CASES REQUIRE

PROMPT TREATMENT.

TO RENDER EXISTENCE DESIRABLE

If you are suffering, or have suffered, from involuntary discharges, what effect does it produce upon your general health? Do you feel weak, debilitated, easily tired? Does a little extra exertion produce palpatation of the heart? Does your liver, or urine organs, or your kidneys, get out of order? Is your urine sometimes thick, milky or flocky, or is it ropy on settling? Or does a thick skum rise to the top? Or is a sediment at the bottom after it has stood awhile? Do you have spells of short breathing or dyspepsia? Are your bowels constipated? Do you have spells of fainting, or rushes of blood to the head? Is your memory impaired? Is your mind constantly dwelling on this subject? Do you feel dull, listless, moping, tired of company, of life? Do you wish to be left alone, to get away from everybody? Does any little thing make you start or jump? Is your sleep broken or restless? Is the lustre of your eye as bright? Do you enjoy yourself in society as well? Do you pursue your business with the same energy? Do you feel as much confidence in yourself? Are your spirits dull and flagging, given to fits of melancholy? If so, do not lay it to your liver or dyspepsia. Have you rest less nights? Your back weak, your knees weak, and have but little appetite, and you attribute this to dyspepsia or liver complaint?

Now, reader, self-abuse, venereal diseases badly cured, and sexual excesses, are all capable of producing a weakness of the generative organs. The organs of generation, when in perfect health, make the man. Did you ever think that those bold, defiant, energetic, persevering, successful business men are always those whose organs are in perfect health? You never hear such men complain of being melancholy, of nervousness, of palpitation of the heart. They are never afraid they cannot succeed in business; they don't become sad and discouraged, they are always polite and pleasant in company of ladies, and look you and them right in the face—none of your downcast looks or any other meanness about them. I do not mean those who keep the organs inflated by running to excess. These will not only ruin their constitution, but those they do business with or for.

How many men, from badly cured diseases, from the effects of self abuse and excesses, have brought about that state of weakness in these organs that has reduced the general system so much as to induce almost every other disease—idiocy, lunacy, paralysis, spinal affections, suicide, and almost every form of disease humanity is heir to—and the real cause of the trouble scarcely ever suspected, and have doctored for all but the right one.

COUGHS, SORE THROAT, ETC

No medicine or treatment can excel the powerful curative power of

DR. SIMMS'

WHITE PULMONIC BALSAM.

It cures with a rapidity unequalled by any other remedy offered for throat and lung diseases. It is recommended by over 2,000 persons in Wilmington, and hundreds in Philadelphia, Baltimore and other cities and communities throughout the country. Mr. Pennington, of Wilmington, Illinois, writes that there is not (with a few exceptions) a family in that city who will be without it if possible to procure it. Such is its popularity wherever it is known—and this popularity arises from the fact that it universally cures all who use it. There is no case of

COUGHS, COLDS, SORE THROAT,

ASTHMA, BRONCHITIS, CROUP,

BLOOD SPITTING, HOARSENESS, and even Pulmonary Consumption, where the system is not broken down with the wear of the disease, or pretended medicine, or inexperienced advice, that this Balsam will not cure if carefully used according to directions. We guarantee it all we represent it be, and invite a trial from the afflicted everywhere. Price 50 cts., med um size, and $1 for large size bottles. Prepared only by
